Class Warfare.....

A desperate public deprived of the ability to feed itself is the easiest way for dictators to control a nation---

After corporate farms have patented food due to unnecessary and often harmful tweeking such as GMO's, and pesticides have destroyed the natural balance of insects and plants to an extent that organic foods are difficult if not impossible to grow, humanity will be enslaved. Supporters of this system are both D Establishment and R Establishment. The motivation is campaign contributions at the least. One would never say bribery.

Privatization of food production is only the tip of the iceberg. Consider privatization of roads---

Although Trump promotes this, privatization of schools and prisons began under the Establishment Democratic control. This is quite surely a step toward authoritarianism.

The grassroots U. S. public is making heard their disdain for a U. S. government that has eschewed democracy for capitalism. Grassroots protests in the streets have been dishonored by a Democratic Establishment Party that has presumed to elbow its way to the front of that grassroots organization, that has nothing to do with Establishment. This reflects the Democratic Primary and the thumb-on-the-scale for Hillary Clinton, a self-described capitalist. After the meltdown of Democratic politicians across the U. S., the Democratic Party has presumed to put in control of the Democratic Party a Hillary Clinton supporter, exhibiting the tin ear that has resulted in a Republican leadership in the U. S.. In fact, Trump had said he did not support TPP, while Tom Perez, new DNC Chair, did support TPP that was a giveaway to multi-national corporations. Perez also supports DAPL and the XL Pipeline, both of which are an affront to local communities, placing them in danger similar to viewing a slow-motion car accident. Perez objects to single-payer health insurance, the only sane method of health delivery, and he does not support tuition-free state universities. Where will the money come from, they ask? Globalization sent U. S. jobs overseas, was misnamed "spreading democracy" to silence the public, is decidedly imperialism, and is supported by The Military-Industrial Complex that President Eisenhower warned against. This capitalistic system is costing the U. S. public a fortune. That is the reason for the wealth transfer away from the 99% to the 1%. It's about class warfare.

And so a different path for grassroots efforts toward regaining governance of, by, and for The People is the next step. Several suggestions----

*<https://www.myyadjones.com/meet-myya> -- New voices are sorely needed. Entrenchment too often leads to corruption. A 22-year-old can't do worse than that which we have all ready witnessed. The entrenched voices articulate that which is self-conflicted and stale.

*<http://blackyouthproject.com/about-us/> -- One has wondered the reason Millennials aren't more involved. The youth of the '60's owned their power with confidence. Possibly the reason was the Vietnam War in which kids were drafted directly out of high school and into the military to fight and die for the capitalism at an age at which they couldn't even vote....at the time. This was a distinct motivator....similar to having your hair on fire. One could say the stakes are as high in 2017 as they were in 1968. The future belongs to the young....let's hear from you.

George Washington's statement about Political Parties. He preferred fair elections.

The election of Tom Perez, an Establishment Capitalist, is indicative of the DNC that is too self-conflicted and entrenched to have heard the voice of the grassroots D's who the Establishment D's wish to harness and ride over election finish lines.

Evidence suggests the health and welfare of the U. S. public is irrelevant to our so-called Representatives Of The People---One example----

<http://www.evesun.com/news/stories/2017-02-06/26031/Senator-Akshar-announces-Community-Heroes-Protection-Act/> -- Senator Akshar proposes calling a hate crime, attacks on law enforcement.

One recalls directly after the 9/11 attacks in NYC, the unusual terror in the eyes of men. One recalls thinking, finally men feel the terror some women feel every day.

One worries the benign sounding Heroes Protection Act is a nose under the tent of authoritarianism. The reason one worries about this is the privatization that is placing the public at the service of commercial interests and the U. S. government. This is not theoretical, it is happening. The resultant need for a militarized law enforcement to replace the law enforcement that, in a democracy will have a mission of protecting and serving the public, will on a continuum become the jackbooted thugs of totalitarianism.

In contrast, that environmentalists are now and have been under the D Administration, known to be placed on terrorist watch lists for defending human rights and environmental rights, and that many of these environmentalists are women, is particularly concerning.

<http://www.cbsnews.com/latest/48-hours/full-episodes/> -- Stalking is a deadly activity that has put at risk both men and women, but as a majority, women. Stalking is associated with domestic violence and misogyny. Coinciding with any naming as a hate crime, crime against law enforcement, must be physical crimes against women including domestic violence, misogyny, and stalking.

Although this is a vague memory, one recalls someone saying of Ronald Reagan (paraphrase) -- "it's not that he's a bad man, it's just that he's devoid of imagination."

One is quite enthusiastic to hear more from the Millennials who will take over shortly. It would bode well to get involved long and early in shaping your future, or you'll get what we give you.
